

On the Road to Success...

2015 ANNUAL REPORT

A MESSAGE FROM...

Our President and Chairman

Whether it's a child receiving an academic foundation or an adult in pursuit of economic independence and stability, the Road to Success begins at Family Centers for so many in our community. With programs and services for every stage of life, our team of 200 professionals and 3,000 volunteers actively assisted 25,500 individuals this year as they pursued their life goals and dreams. Many who sought our help presented multiple issues requiring interventions from more than one program.

Recognizing that no one agency can provide everything an individual or family may need, Family Centers continues to develop its extensive network of cross-sector collaborations with other organizations. In an effort to attack the underpinnings of the achievement gap, Family Centers is engaged in the Co-Educator Project, which just launched as part of the Vita Health and Wellness District initiative in Stamford. This program aims to dramatically increase the effectiveness of immigrant parents to function as co-educators for their children. With active participation from Charter Oak Communities, Childcare Learning Centers, Neighbors Link, Stamford Hospital, Stamford Public Schools and the Harvard Business School-Community Partners (HBS-CP), this initiative will demonstrate the power of collective impact.

Working with partners helps to broaden our reach and leads to better outcomes for all. Family Centers' recent award of a federal grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to open a Federally Qualified Health Center at Wilbur Peck Court will greatly expand healthcare access for public housing residents in Greenwich. This clinic will provide primary, dental – and later mental health care – to so many residents who lack access to these services. This clinic award was only possible through our strong partnership with the Greenwich Housing Authority and the support of the Greenwich Department of Social Services, Greenwich Hospital, United Way of Greenwich, the Board of Selectmen and others invested in expanding healthcare to residents who are underserved.

Pursuing new avenues of intervention in the service of our community is what we do at Family Centers. Our amazing professionals are on the front line everyday delivering a wide range of programs that enhance the lives of our clients and their family members.

Measuring our effectiveness on multiple levels is an ongoing challenge. Each of Family Centers' programs produces an annual "Results Card." Beginning this year, we will include Return on Investment (ROI) data in some of our Results Cards. We are grateful to Bob Neiman and the HBS-CP for their ongoing consultation around the development of the metrics and training necessary for us to demonstrate the ROI for every dollar contributed to Family Centers.

Achieving the best level of practice across the entire organization is an ongoing goal at Family Centers, and much was accomplished in 2015. For the eighth consecutive year, Family Centers has earned Charity Navigator's Four Star rating for fiscal responsibility. Earlier this year all of our preschools, School Readiness and Head Start programs were reaccredited by the National Association for the Education of Young Children. We congratulate our Early Care and Education team for this substantial accomplishment. On a final note, for the third time in five years Family Centers received a "Top Workplace" designation from Hearst Connecticut Media. This is a reflection on our employees and the deep level of commitment they bring to their work at Family Centers.

As this busy and highly productive year comes to a close, we begin our 125th year as a source of hope, help and creative solutions. This anniversary is a testament to the adaptability of an organization that anticipates and responds to the needs of an ever changing community.

EXTRAORDINARY RESULTS

mental illness. The event was co-chaired by Barbara Epifanio, Heather Pech and Terri Walker.

The Titans Speaker Series continued in June with a breakfast featuring FOX News CEO Roger Ailes. In this rare public speaking event, Ailes drew on his experience as the head of one of the nation's top-rated news networks to offer his unique perspectives on media, global affairs and leadership. Jan Dilenschneider and Carl Goodnow served as co-chairs.

This past year, a series of special events provided the fuel Family Centers needed to help local families and individuals continue along the "Road to Success." Collectively, these events raised more than $920,000 to support Family Centers' wide array of programs and services.

Lastly, more than 350 guests were transported to a Polynesian Paradise for "One Enchanted Evening" at Family Centers' South Pacific benefit.

Held at the waterfront home of Laurie and Peter Grauer, Family Centers' version of South Pacific captured the true spirit of the tropics. Drawing from elements of the classic Broadway musical, co-chairs Brooke Ashforth, Laurie Grauer, Laurie Host and Susan Yonce created an evening filled with island adventure and romance.

In December, Family Centers' popular Titans Speaker Series brought former CIA Director and self-proclaimed "spymaster" Jack Devine to Greenwich. More than 200 guests were treated to some "inside intel" into the missions that shaped his 30-year career at the secretive government agency. Thanks to Jan Dilenschneider and Linda McMahon for chairing this event.

A bit of Hollywood flair was added to this year's Center for HOPE Luncheon, as Oscar-winning actress Mariel Hemingway took the podium to share how her family's struggles with mental illness had shaped her life. In her remarks, Hemingway spoke candidly about the suicides of her grandfather, Ernest, and sister, Margaux, and how those losses led her to become an outspoken advocate for those living with

BRIGHT BEGINNINGS

Milton Andrade was never one to ask for help. Throughout his time at Stamford's Academy of Information Technology & Engineering (AITE), Milton relied on a combination of intuition and solid common sense to overcome the social, academic and extracurricular challenges typical of most teenagers. But during his senior year, Milton came face to face with a problem he couldn't solve on his own.

For several months, family problems created turmoil at Milton's house. At first, he tried to ignore the mounting stress at home and go about his business. As an avid amateur boxer, the sport provided Milton with a sense of normalcy. When an injury cost him time away from the ring, the weight of Milton's family problems became too much to bear. Without the outlet he desperately needed, Milton began losing sleep, skipping class and saw his grades plummet.

As the pressure of his family's struggles continued to mount, Milton felt the need to talk about his concerns. Unfortunately, he didn't know where to turn. Milton had a number of close friends he trusted, but he felt the issues at home were too personal to share with others. He also knew the School Based Health Center at school had a licensed clinical social worker on staff who could help. However, he was hesitant at first to talk to a therapist out of fear his friends would perceive him as "weak" or "soft".

But after opening up a bit to the school nurse about the struggles at home, Milton was urged to meet with the Health Center social worker. He was reluctant at first, but soon realized the Health Center offered the safe, non-judgmental forum he needed to express his feelings. For the first time Milton was able to speak freely about his frustrations and the impact his family's struggles had on him emotionally. He also realized that the source of his anxiety stemmed from the fact that he felt it was his responsibility to fix the situation.

My family's problems put me into a very dark place. If it wasn't for the Health Center, I probably wouldn't have made it through high school.

NUBIA BARAHONA

NURTURING FAMILIES NETWORK CLIENT

"Family Centers has been with my family every step of the way. When my son was born prematurely, I was overwhelmed, scared and had no idea how to be a parent. The Nurturing Families Network gave me the support and guidance I needed to be the mother he deserves. The RTE program also helped to validate the bachelor's degree I earned in El Salvador so I can work here in the U.S. I'm also finally becoming a citizen in just a few months!"

CAROLINA SOSA

YOUNG PARENTS PROGRAM PARTICIPANT

"Finding out I was pregnant was frightening. I had no idea how I was going to get through high school and provide for a newborn baby. The Young Parents Program not only helped me prepare to become a mother, but also provided the encouragement to keep my education on track. More importantly, I gained a support network of other young moms who made me feel less alone."

TANET GUTHRIE

GREENWICH HEAD START PRESCHOOL PARENT

"Hannah looks forward to going to school every day. The growth in her development over the past year has been amazing. Seeing her skip down the path to get to her classroom, and wanting to stay even at pick up time lets me know that I've made a good decision with this program. I've also been able to go back to work knowing my daughter is in a fun, safe environment."

With the help of the social worker, Milton learned critical coping techniques to deal with the most stressful of situations. He also learned that he did not have to shoulder his family's problems alone, and that taking a break to focus on his own goals was not a selfish act. Even though life at home is still somewhat unsettled, Milton says the School Based Health Center has helped improve his confidence and focus. This fall, he will enter college on a partial scholarship and has plans to enter his first semi-professional boxing match.

"My family's problems put me into a very dark place," Milton said. "If it wasn't for the Health Center, I probably wouldn't have made it through high school. Rather than keeping my feelings bottled up inside, I was able to talk about them. And once they were out there, figuring out ways to overcome the obstacles at home became much clearer."

JAANA NARSTPUR

EARLY CARE AND EDUCATION PARENT

"Our experience at the Arch Street Preschool has been everything we hoped it would be. The philosophy of mixing a set learning curriculum and time for play really works for Rishaan. Not only is he developing the educational tools he'll need in kindergarten, but his social skills are greatly improved. As a parent, I also appreciate how the staff seeks out family feedback and keeps us all informed about what goes on in the classroom."

KAREN WENZ

DIRECTOR OF FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH'S NURSERY SCHOOL AND CARE TO CARE CLIENT

"Care to Care has been an amazing resource to the First Presbyterian Church Nursery School. In addition to helping certify our staff on CPR, First Aid and Epi Pen administration, the program's nurse consultant was instrumental in keeping us apprised of changes to the state's health regulations. Care to Care took the stress out of meeting health mandates so that our teachers can focus on the education of our school's children."

FOSTERING INDEPENDENCE

To Eric Pobee, achieving the American Dream is something he takes very seriously. A native of Ghana, Eric and his three young children moved to the United States in search of a better life. While it wasn't easy balancing fatherhood and the stress of providing for his family, Eric made it work. For years, he endured an hour-long commute down I-95 because certified nursing jobs in Fairfield County paid more than others elsewhere in the state.

When Eric learned that he was eligible for Section 8 housing in Stamford, he finally felt as if life was falling into place. Living closer to work meant Eric could spend more time with his kids and he didn't have to rely on others for childcare. Unfortunately, Eric's good fortune didn't last too long. Shortly after moving into his new apartment, an accident left him visually impaired and unable to work. As his recovery dragged on for almost two years, the bills began to mount and Eric sank into a depression.

DENITA HORTON

HOUSING RESOURCE PROGRAM CLIENT

"I've always been a hard worker and prided myself on being the best I could be. Never in a million years did I imagine I'd end up homeless and living in a shelter. The experience was a real low point in my life, and I've struggled with depression since. But I now have a comfortable place to call my own and things are starting to look up. For the first time in a long time, I have some peace of mind."

TYRONE BULLOCK

REACHING INDEPENDENCE THROUGH
EMPLOYMENT (RITE) CLIENT

"I lost my job as a carpenter when the economy went south in 2008. After struggling to find work for several months, I knew I had to make a change. The trouble was that I didn't know how. The RITE program gave me the resources and guidance I needed to go back to school and pursue a career in social work."

Unsure how to get his life back on track, Eric reached out to the Family Self Sufficiency Program for help. Since his injury prevented him from continuing a career in healthcare, the program's coordinator encouraged Eric to explore other avenues. He always had an interest in becoming a counselor, but lacked the necessary education. With the support and guidance of the Family Self Sufficiency Program coordinator, Eric enrolled in Southern Connecticut State University.

Once he earned his bachelor's degree, Eric worked with the program to prepare for his re-entry into the workforce. He learned how to conduct a thorough job search, underwent numerous mock interviews and rebuilt his resume from the bottom up. Eric's determination paid off, as he landed a full-time job as a mental health worker at a local nonprofit organization. Obtaining employment after two long years was such a victory for Eric that he immediately enrolled in graduate school to keep his professional momentum moving forward.

With his employment situation stabilized, the Family Self Sufficiency Program began helping Eric plan to purchase his own home. In addition to taking steps to restore his credit, the program enabled Eric to open an escrow account in which he can save any income increases for a down payment. Although he still considers himself a "work in progress," Eric is pleased at how far he's come and looks forward to the future.

"The feeling I get from achieving my goals is something I can't describe," he said. "There were times when I didn't think I would make it, but the Family Self Sufficiency Program was there to help me to move forward. I wouldn't be where I am today without them."

CHRISTIE METELLUS

COMMUNITY AND SUPPORTIVE SERVICES CLIENT

"I can't believe I waited so long to seek out Family Centers' help. They've done so much for me personally, and I'm very grateful. My Resident Services Coordinator has become my cheerleader and opened my eyes to options I've never considered. But more importantly, Family Centers has created an atmosphere in which residents of my housing complex are working together to make this a better place to live."

LITERACY VOLUNTEERS PARTICIPANT

"Moving from Columbia to start a new life in the U.S. was an exciting, but frightening, experience. I left a successful career as an ophthalmologist and knew very little English. Taking classes at Literacy Volunteers not only helped me learn the language, but also made the transition much easier. Today, I'm a U.S. citizen and much more confident."

FAMILIES IN CRISIS

In a split second, Zuleika Correa's life changed forever. As a single mother of three children under the age of 8, Zuleika had a loving nature and always put her kids' needs before her own. Yet, she thrived on structure and a keen sense of organization to keep her busy life on track. But on one particular morning almost two years ago, something snapped.

Stuck in the throes of post-partum depression, Zuleika woke up late one morning to find her normally tidy apartment in shambles. Toys and clothes littered the floor, food was strewn about the kitchen and her kids were bouncing on the furniture. Zuleika flew into a rage and, without thinking, physically disciplined the children. Zuleika's sister was over at the time and witnessed the altercation. Shocked by this behavior, she called the police and had Zuleika arrested.

The days following the incident were what Zuleika called her "dark point." Aside from dealing with the public embarrassment of being arrested, she was ashamed that she had gotten physical with her kids. The situation got worse when Zuleika learned her kids would live with her sister until she could prove to the State of Connecticut that she was a suitable parent. Eager to get her family back, she followed the Department of Children and Families' instructions and enrolled in the Intensive Family Preservation Program.

Zuleika admits that she entered the program with a bit of a chip on her shoulder. She was never a very trusting person, but she was especially on guard since the arrest. It took a while, but Zuleika realized that her Intensive Family Preservation Program case worker wasn't there to judge her. Rather, she was there to help.

Once a level of trust was established, the case worker taught Zuleika positive parenting skills and suggested productive ways she could channel her anger. She also provided the counseling Zuleika needed to overcome her post-partum depression. More importantly, the Intensive Family Preservation Program offered Zuleika a support network when she needed it the most.

Once Zuleika completed the program and was reunited with her kids, she began to make plans to start fresh. Zuleika said her involvement in the Intensive Family Preservation Program made her believe in second chances again, and she intends on taking advantage of hers. This past summer, she and the kids moved to Florida where she plans to pursue a degree in Human Resources. "Family Centers

More importantly, they provided the emotional support I needed to overcome the stigma associated with HIV, and encouraged me to be an advocate to help others in my situation."

STEVE DOUGHERTY CENTER FOR HOPE CLIENT

"I was initially reluctant to join a support group following my wife's death. But at the urging of my therapist, I decided to give the Center for HOPE a try. What struck me immediately was how non-threatening my spousal bereavement group was. I was never pressured to speak, and I really appreciated that I was among other people who understood what I was feeling. I don't think you ever really get over the loss of someone you love, but the Center for HOPE has certainly helped me move forward."

ALEXA AND JARRETT ALEXANDER THE DEN FOR GRIEVING KIDS PARTICIPANTS

"Right after our dad died, we moved from Colorado to live with our aunt in Connecticut. It was a very sad and difficult time for us, but The Den helped us work through the different feelings we were experiencing. We did a bunch of projects and activities that reminded us of the good times we had with our dad. Meeting other kids who knew exactly what we were going through made all the difference."

OUR VOLUNTEERS

Traveling the road toward volunteerism is often a very personal journey. For some people, community service is part of a family tradition that has been passed down for generations. For others, giving back is a way to show appreciation for help they've received in the past. In Beth and Laura Gerson's case, their volunteer story began after they found the strength to overcome a family tragedy.

For many years, Beth had what many people considered an ideal life. She was happily married, lived in a nice home in Stamford and enjoyed raising her two young children, Laura and Tim. But when her husband died in 2001, Beth's world was turned upside down. She suddenly found herself a widow and the sole caretaker of her children. Beth knew that she and the kids would benefit from talking to someone about their loss, but a traditional therapy setting wasn't appealing. While in the hospital caring for her husband, Beth heard about The Den for Grieving Kids and decided to give it a try.

Beth soon realized The Den was just what they all needed. Rather than talking to a therapist about their father, Laura and Tim worked through their grief by doing activities and playing games with kids their own age. Meanwhile, Beth appreciated the open conversations she had with other adults who had also lost a loved one. For the Gersons, The Den offered the comforting and understanding environment they needed to cope with their loss. After three years, the pain eventually subsided and the Gersons felt it was time to leave The Den.

It took a while, but Beth and Laura found their way back to The Den 14 years later. Having a forum in which she could talk openly about her father's death with kids in similar situations was extremely healing for Laura. She had always wanted to provide other kids that same experience, but had to wait until she was older to volunteer at The Den. So, shortly after Laura turned 16, both she and Beth jumped at the chance to give back to the program that gave them so much. They soon became greeters at The Den, often providing a warm smile or some welcoming words to families attending the program's evening support groups.

Knowing how raw emotions can be following the death of a loved one, the Gersons also regularly shared how The Den helped them. "Grief is as real as any physical wound," Beth said. "It's comforting to know that other people know how you feel. I had no problem telling Den families my own story to show them that it does get easier."

"There was nowhere else I wanted to volunteer," added Laura. "The Den was there for us when we needed it. I'm grateful it's still here for other families, and it's an honor to be part of such an amazing program."

HELEN GRATZ ROCKEFELLER OUTSTANDING VOLUNTEERISM AWARD LAURIE HOST

"Laurie's four years as Board Chairman were replete with accomplishments that advanced the work of Family Centers. During her tenure, Literacy Volunteers merged into Family Centers, a new School Based Health Center was constructed and opened at Cloonan Middle School, the successful technology collaborative was formed and millions of dollars were raised through annual giving and special events. Laurie's leadership of the Board has left Family Centers in a better position to meet the challenges and demands that lie ahead."

— Jan Dilenschneider, Former Board Chairman

FAMILY CHAMPION AWARD BOB NEIMAN

"Over the past five years, Bob and his colleagues from the Harvard Business School-Community Partners have provided invaluable consultation to Family Centers – positioning the agency for future success. Bob has invested countless hours on projects related to program development, strategic planning and designing a methodology to determine the agency's overall economic value and return on investment (ROI). Thanks to Bob's insights and generosity, Family Centers is at the forefront of demonstrating the value returned on each dollar donated to the organization."

— Bob Arnold, President
